

Window Maker Gets Big Recovery

Representing manufacturing company Pella Corp. in seeking insurance coverage for numerous class actions alleging certain Pella windows were faulty and caused water damage, Keith litigated several novel issues to successful outcomes in Iowa federal Court. In a string of summary judgment rulings that had national impact, Keith procured rulings that defective workmanship can give rise to a covered “occurrence” and that all insurance policies in place from date of window installation could be called upon to provide coverage.