

NYU Law News: Ken Frenchman '99 helps launch a new firm focused on insurance recovery

After a year when the coronavirus pandemic changed much about the practice of law, Ken Frenchman '99 joined several long-time colleagues in making a big change of their own: starting their own firm.

On January 5, Frenchman, Robin Cohen, Adam Ziffer, and Keith McKenna, along with 20 other attorneys and staff members, launched Cohen Ziffer Frenchman & McKenna. The four name partners most recently worked together at McKool Smith, where Cohen led the insurance recovery group. The new firm will have the same practice focus, representing policyholders in claims disputes with insurers. Frenchman will serve as managing partner.
